

What are Missional Communities?

A missional community is a group of 20-40 people who are seeking to reach a particular neighborhood or network of relationships with the good news of Jesus. The group balances its energies between an upward movement towards God, an inward movement toward the missional community as a place of identity, and an outward movement to represent Christ to their mission context. While each community will look different from all the others, there are a few key essential ingredients that each group will have.

- UP/IN/OUT Intentionally lives out the three dimensions of Jesus' life. UPward dimension of life with the Father, INward dimension of life with the Body of Christ together, OUTward dimension of fully stepping into a broken world (Luke 6:12-19)
- Size of an extended family A missional family is best understood in the range of 20-50 people, as it is small enough to care but large enough to dare.
- Clear mission/vision Who is this Missional Community trying to bring the Kingdom of God to? The most successful MC's have a very clear answer that could only be true of their group.
- Lighweight/Low maintenance If the Missional Community can't be led by people with normal 9-5pm jobs who aren't paid to do it, it's not lightweight and low maintenance enough. It's got to be simple and reproducible.
- Accountable leaders. The person(s) leading the Missional Community need to be accountable to others so there exists a dynamic of low control and high accountability.

There will be great diversity between missional communities in how this looks when they gather together. The only 'rule' is that they do not try to do a miniature version of a Sunday church service. There is tremendous flexibility in the forms of Missional Communities, since the intention is that they are highly accessible to the culture into which they are planted, but most missional communities will also do certain things pretty regularly, including:

- Food Sharing a meal together on a regular basis in someone's home
- Fun Socializing/ laughing/ having fun is key to growing together as a group and developing an environment that is welcoming to inviting new people.
- Story-telling Sharing things people are grateful to God for both in our personal lives and in the mission context we all share.
- Prayer Offering prayer for healing and prophetic encouragement to anyone who has particular need, and for the community that is being reached out to.
- Scripture Especially from what God has been speaking to the leader (or whoever is leading that portion) about during the past week.
- Planning Developing plans for mission activities for the group.

Here are some examples of missional communities that will be forming in the next few months:

- Orphan Care A group of families committed to caring for children who do not have a stable family, and committed to encouraging one another on that journey. The group meets once a month for a shared meal, and Sunday mornings for deeper spiritual conversations. Members of this group will also open their homes to children in need, and serve together at events supporting foster care, adoption and safe families.
- Families experiencing homelessness Taking a core group of people working with IHN and forming more opportunities for deeper community and growth in our relationships with God.
- Children from Pleasant Hill and their families Drawing together a community to support and encourage each other as they live out their call to care for kids at Pleasant Hill Academy and connect with their families.

Dear CHPC,

First, I want to thank you all for so graciously welcoming me into this position at the church meeting last week. I am feeling very supported and loved, and I have been so encouraged by the help that you have offered and given me in this first week.

A little bit about me: I grew up in this church, and my heart has really always been in children's and youth ministry. As a kid I was very involved here, in camps, Sunday school, youth group, and many other things. As a teen I started to serve and disciple those younger than I as a camp counselor, student youth group leader, and a Children and Youth Summer Intern. In college I earned a Bachelor of Arts in Theology at Whitworth University, and I worked with the youth group at my church there for six years, as a volunteer leader, a year-long Youth Intern, and an Interim Youth Director for a summer.

Growing up here at CHPC, I was poured into by so many people who taught, mentored, and loved me as I grew in Christ. As I got older, I knew God was calling me to do the same for others. He has provided me with so many different adventures where I've been able to do this, and even at times in my life when I've tried to run the other direction, He has quickly turned me around and drawn me right back into ministry with kids and youth!

When I moved back to Cincinnati, this is exactly what He did here at CHPC: For the past two summers, I was the Resident Camp Director. After camp this year, I felt God calling me very strongly to devote more of my time to ministry with the kids at our church and in our community. I stepped out in faith and cut back hours at my paying job to devote more time to volunteering here, never imagining that this is what God had in store for me!

Though the circumstances are not what I would have chosen, I am excited to be on this crazy adventure that God has so perfectly planned out. I love this church, I love the change that God is leading us into and the mission that we have committed to in order to follow this call. Most of all, I am thrilled to be able to continue to love on our incredible kids and to teach them more about what it really means to follow Jesus!
